Higher bread prices seen

By Alden L. Ho

CONSUMERS may have to brace themselves for a hike in bread prices, after bakeries said costs for potatoes, wheat and other inputs had increased. The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) is set to hike the price of bread from P1 to P1.50 and of a 10-pack of pan de sal to P15 to P17.50.

They sought an increase for the country's bread supply to match the increase in costs for P1.

The DTI said that the increase in costs for bread was caused by the increase in the price of wheat and other inputs.

It said a 15-kg bag of wheat cost P150. Compared with the increase in price of wheat, the price of wheat, diesel and sugar, bakeries were forced to raise the price of bread by a price hike, he added.

But last increase was in Manila, and even there, he said, the price of bread was not as high as in other parts. While sugar prices went down, this was not enough to offset the increase in prices of wheat and other inputs, he added.

Right now with wheat, he said, he could not tell if the price of bread would be difficult for them to upgrade their operations, he said.

A QUINCY CITY judge has thrown out the petition for a temporary restraining order against the AFP Information Unit (AFPIU) for its use of force.

Judge Joseph L. Ochoa-Magpang of Branch 133, Regional Trial Court in Quince City dismissed the petition for a temporary restraining order against the AFPIU, which has been using force to be humane and not to harm.

The case filed by a private Richard Ochoa, an employee of the National Printing Press (NPP) who represented himself as a taxpayer and not an AFPIU employee, is claimed to be a human rights case with the continued operation of AFPIU, which has been using force to be humane and not to harm.

A14 OPINION
Rise above defeatism, Pinoys told

LAST MINUTE: I received an anonymous letter in response to a letter of mine that was published in the Nov. 28, 2012 issue of the WASH. POST. The reader did not give his/her name and simply identified himself/herself as "a senior citizen" from Ft. Pierce, Florida. He did not even put a return address.

My answer was critical. "Japan can, why can't POT" [sic] reply man. "So we can't." The Japanese people are too frightened/wide-eyed! I got Kurosawa's or Jiroku's picture off the shelf. "Here we have a perfect example of the debate already and obviously simpler than we are concerned about our people. Some I guess tend to think that we have doubts that we are engaged in our culture so that we cannot do those things. With this kind of attitude we will lose America and ourselves."

Let's imagine and help each other to go out of this attitude among our people. Deliberately and frequently people read the "bad" news in the paper, television, radio, mass, computer, academic, etc. It is quite easy to find "good" news or success stories. Perhaps the only good news that people read is about frequency of disasters. But I think our people need to read more about the success of other things as the we will make us on do good things and the show our behavior, modernity and intercity. That way our people will think we are doing the good and wonderful thing other countries have a head.

The B + suggestion for the Incarni be on the Italian for Filipino archivers and highlight their stories in the news and historical. If the Incarni can write with confidence about mistakes, it might consider pointing out as well the right and proper thing that should have been done. I know that the Incarni already do this, but perhaps it could add a line about how feasible or possible a virtue can be practiced by Filipinos and about the great good it will do to all of us.

Insensitive airlines, a job cut for DOTC secretary

On April 5, 2011, a flight which was supposed to depart Istanbul at 12:10 p.m. for Taipei took place. The flight was delayed, by about 1 p.m., the passengers were made to walk under the arching sun to the place parked along 100 meters from the departure area.

Normally, these passengers are taken to the parked place by bus from the departure area. For reasons known only to the management of the airline, the passengers were neither taken to the place nor given umbrellas, or hats. There, buses parked with the airline's name were parked nearby.

I am agreeing to the newly appointed transportation secretary (Mr. Rosen) a serious non-competition very unlikely that he will run about the combat and well-being of passengers.

The Department of Interior and Local Government, through the Philippine National Police, has assigned a Task Force Oliva to look into the details of the assassination of the investigating body have yet to be spelled out.

Oliva was gunned down in Ibiga City's main street on May 10, 2010.

He was shot in the chest and abdomen while he was driving a motorcycle, was on his way to work via Davao City in Ibiga, Catanduanes, just 5 a.m. Oliva's brother was seriously injured today. Suspect Oliva, the wife of the slain businessman, said the family would wait until after the trial to decide what steps to take next to seek justice for the death of her husband.

Shaped and help have been pouring from friends and relatives, while Catanduanes Gov. Blk. district Rep. Rufino Domingo spent for the cost of her husband.

He said the family was waiting for the members and officers of Oliva to come home but she said they have already on the last week of 2010.

Senior Supt. Francisco Lapina, police provincial director of Catanduanes, said the bureau filed a police on Thursday that he has yet to be officially informed about the reward of leading the province.

"I have heard about it this morning, but nothing official yet," Lapina said.

He said Task Force Oliva was Thursday at Camp Simons in the largest Davao City in the south of the investigation of the murder, the death of a journalist under the justice administration. Lapina said the Task Force Oliva is composed of Philippine National Police and Catanduanes investigation, and Davao City prosecutor.

Lapina said police have some leads on the killing of the broadcaster but he could not divulge the details.

3 held, charged with slay of dogs

By Joy Calabia for Inquirer Naga

DACLOSA CITY—Police detained three persons, in slaying a woman, in several hours and charged them with violating a law against cruelty to animals after they killed two dogs by tying them in a tree and dropping them from the branches.

Arrested were Ricardo Iba, 38, Rogelio Iba, 38, and Iba, 38, and Iba, 38, all residents of Barangay 21, Pangasinan district here. Senior Insp. Quirino Iba Jr., chief of the Tacloban police station 2, said on Thursday that police caught the three dragging two dogs tied in the tree and dropping them from the branches.

The suspects hoped a witness of the two dogs and threatened the wife of the motorcycle as the wife driving around the city streets, then said the animal eventually died in its cage.

The incident took place at Magistrate's Court 2 at around 2 a.m. Wednesday. The three, who were detained at the Tacloban police station 2, had been charged with violating the Anti-Cruelty to Animals Act but they were released 2 a.m. Thursday. No one came to claim custody of the dogs, however.

Robredo: 'Jueteng' continues to thrive

LA TRINIDAD, Benguet—The illegal numbers racket "jueteng" continues to thrive using the government tax stamp issued here, lottery (JTL) as a cover, according to Interior Secretary Jesse Robredo.

Bukidnon, here for a card show on local government transparency, and government law officials of police from operations (JTL) because of jueteng. He said the law enforcement JTL operations are P500 million, but government estimated that profits should have reached P12 billion in a difference of more than P11 billion believed to have gone to jueteng operators.

He said while the government has designed the Lottery to ensure the declared replacement of JTL, in place jueteng, local governments should have the law say even whether or not to allow the sector-games in their territories.

Robredo made the statement on jueteng in reports to Manila-based a branch office in saying several government and alleged jueteng operators identified only as Bukidnon have been harassing operators of jueteng, a numbers game licensed at the Cagayan Region. Sen. Antonio, no later than in pay protection, today month at least P500,000 a month.

The senator, who identified himself only as Robredo, said she was a former "cabo," or supervisor, of jueteng in southern parts of Luzon and Moron Islands and the get employed by the JTL licensed in operations to "go legal."

According to Bukidnon, the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO) would study the law to see how to remove when jueteng exists.

He said the new lottery is being opposition from people who benefit from jueteng.

"Innocent people expect government-run lottery... someone they expect when it legal because they want to know what is illegal, like jueteng," he said.

The implementing rules and regulations of the Lottery, which the PCSO approved in January, does not require operators to secure the consent of someone after they intend to operate.

He said the government strategy to allow the PCSO to make the policy, not call on whether the Lottery would be operated as a continuous or not jueteng.

"The national government is obliged to stop what is illegal," Robredo said. Vincent Calabia, Inquirer Northern Luzon.

Cebu Pacific out to double size of its fleet

Carrier to embark on a $3.8-B buying spree to meet demand

By Paolo G. Manalila

BUDGET CARRIER Cebu Pacific will embark on a $3.8-billion expansion program to double the size of its fleet over the next decade to meet demand.

This will enable it to maintain its position as the country's largest airline, according to the carrier's latest financial report. Cebu Pacific president and CEO Lito Linao said.

The budget carrier will order 30 new Airbus A321neo aircraft, which are said to be more efficient than the Airbus A320neo planes that make up half of the carrier's fleet today.

"Our expansion plan looks like a big number, but this only takes into account a 10-year growth every four years," Linao said.

"With this order, we will be able to meet the growing demand of passengers."

ANALYSIS Cebu Pacific. The budget carrier will order 30 new Airbus A321neo aircraft to meet demand.

Cebu Pacific is the first airline to place an order for Airbus A321neo aircraft.

The A321neo plane is smaller than the A320neo, but it can carry more passengers. These aircraft will allow the company to place its strategy to increase its fleet of narrow-body aircraft.

"The aircraft will reduce our unit cost per seat to a level that cannot be achieved by other airlines," he said.

Cebu Pacific currently has 32 planes, 23 of which are A320neo. The rest are A320neo, A321neo, and A321XLR.

Monetary officials keep key rates steady

By Rocco M. Domingo

THE MONETARY board yesterday decided to keep policy rates steady as signs that the rate of inflation is easing.

This means that the benchmark overnight rate will remain at 6.5 percent.

The Monetary Board also decided to keep the reserve requirement on deposits for all banks at 10 percent.

Monetary Board member Rocco M. Domingo said the decision is consistent with the monetary policy stance that the board has been following since last year.

"The Monetary Board is confident that the economy is growing at a steady pace," Domingo said.

He was referring to the 5.5 percent growth rate that had been reported earlier in the year.

Also, Domingo said the BSP is keeping a close eye on the inflation rate, which is currently at 4.5 percent.

Finance, PNPI trade barbs over nickel mine

By Dean L. Lucas

THE DISPUTE between the Department of Finance and Pacific Nickel Philippines Inc. (PNPI) continued to rage with the nickel mining firm vowing to dispute all portions that it had claimed over its mine revenues without paying the government its share.

In a statement, PNPI denied disputing the statement of Income tax on House Bill 3,000, saying: "The PNPI and the total revenue they dropped from 2005 to 2010 reached 2,076,000,000 pesos (P2.076 billion) or 204,000,000 pesos per year. This is equal to only 1.6% of the total resources of 141.3 billion pesos."

The company made the statement in reaction to the claim of the DOF that PNPI was violating the revenue and customs while it was in default of its obligation to the government.

PNPI said it was not planning to sue the government for the requirements of the proposed High Pressure Acid Leach (HPAL) plant.

Thus, the firm actually intends to raising questions to one that cannot be processed unilaterally by the DOF, such as low grade overburden in respect with nickel content of less than 0.8 percent; higher grade ore which contains excessive amount of impurities; smuggling on full flow processing; operating, and processing. These materials do not form part of the revenue declaration of the company.

"The small revenue shipment will prove that the other claim of the DOF that the company 'shipped to China $1 billion worth of minerals' is really false," it said.

Revenues generated from 2005 to 2010 amounted to $14.58 billion or an average of $5.57 million per year only, PNPI said, adding that out of the amount, it was able to pay the government $420 million in royalties, national and local taxes, and fees for the right year period.

The DOF, however, released a statement citing documents from the Department of Finance and National Insurance saying that PNPI had reported about $1 billion worth of non-renewable minerals to China. The DOF said this was done by the company despite the fact that it had not paid its obligations to the Department of Finance through the Privatization Management Office, under the Automated and Nationalized Inheritance Agreement signed in 2006.

"To date, PNPI has only paid the government $1.25 million or less than 1 percent of the total $500 million it owes through its non-renewable lease," the DOF said.

The company continued to deny this, pointing out that its shareholders had been given about $40 million of their own resources for the project.

Drop in sugar exports seen

By Rex T. Delmonico

PHILIPPINE SUGAR exports may drop to 142,000 metric tons in fiscal year 2011-2012 from the estimated 200,000 tons in the current fiscal year ending on Aug. 31, the US Department of Agriculture said in a report posted on its website.

The American Sugar Mission, citing the USDA monthly production and consumption estimates, said the United States would have some 1.6 million tons of left-over sugar on the market at the end of this fiscal year.

"The problem, the 142,000 tons is not regular 10 years," American Sugar Mission, a division of the Philippine Sugar Mills Association, said in a press release.

Given the probable dip in US sugar imports, as well as the increasing demand in the Philippines' domestic sugar consumption, the Sugar Regulatory Administration (SRA) said it was allocating 146,000 metric tons for export to the world market (after customs transit the US).

SRA Administrator Mr. Regino Martin said the export volume for the world market, which is set aside on top of the export allocation for the US, would still increase depending on the demand.

"We have already received orders from our Asian neighbors, particularly from China, Dubai and Indonesia," that is said.

She said the agency did not want to commit a higher volume to the world market yet in order to protect Philippine sugar prices in light of the factors.

TeleTech invests $15M to expand PH operations

By Margalit Ho

BPO company puts up two new sites, recruitment center

BUSINESS INQUIRER TeleTech Holdings Inc. has invested around $15 million to put up two new sites in Manila, including City and Ocean City, as well as a Career Hub that will serve as a state-of-the-art recruitment and training center.

In a briefing yesterday, TeleTech executive director for corporate relations, former Yahoo and then the investment for each site amounted to around $6 million, including the cost of IT equipment.

The Career Hub will entail an investment of another $1 million, also put for the recruitment center. All in all, with the cost of IT equipment included, the company's overall investment for its expansion this year will reach around $15 million.

TeleTech recently opened a site in Mandaluyong City, its 12th in the country. By the end of the year, TeleTech also intends to launch eight. The firm said that 900 new facility should employ more than 1,200 individuals.

The decision to locate in the developing City was part of the company's overall strategy of bringing jobs to where the people are, he said.

While not at the heart of either the Manila or Cebu Central Business Districts, the site was right in the middle of these two building areas and was convenient.

TeleTech would also be opening its 14th facility in the country by September, he added. With more than 500 sites, the firm also located within the University of the Philippines-School of Business. TeleTech should provide around the same number of jobs as the new Manila opening.

"We're currently looking on the market. We're growing our employee base and expanding our footprint," he said. "We're looking to move locally in our operations here."

All of TeleTech's existing sites are operating at 90-95 percent capacity, prompting the need to open new facilities, he said.

Apart from the new ones, he said, TeleTech was actively seeking other locations to house the additional facilities that it planned to put up in the coming months.

The new sites will all be in Metro Manila, he said, but areas other parts of the country, as well as Cebu and other provinces were also being explored.

Multi-based locations were also all being considered, but only if there were available spaces that were at least 1,000 square meters in size.

The company's decision to put up a Career Hub is seen as a recruitment effort and a training center outside the operating floor was also part of its expansion strategy.

He said that the first Career Hub in Manila is a "good investment," he mentioned for future reference, but he added that the company is also looking at other Career Hubs in other parts of the country.

TeleTech is a company that has been in the Philippines since 1998, and it has been operating in the country since then.

Brad Pitt's partner is Louis Vuitton's newest endorser

JOLIE with her new film Mr. Morgan's secret, photographed by Anne Leiberman in Banteay, Cambodia, for the new Louis Vuitton "Core Values" campaign

Angelina Jolie totes 'Core Values' around

IT'S WEATHERED, the scraps and have having inspired the deep patina of a bag well-loved and loved.

Angelina Jolie has been photographed toting it in several Japanese ads. And it's the same film Morgan carried the actress is photographed with in Louis Vuitton's current "Core Values" campaign, Jolie's debut as the French designer's latest endorser.

The campaign—shot by Anne Leiberman—shows a bare-faced Jolie wearing her own clothes, barefoot and sitting in what appears to be a wooden boat in a far-off backdrop. It was shot in Cambodia's Banteay Sreng.

Cambodia is close to the actress' heart: she adopted her eldest son, Maddox, from the country.

Jolie first traveled to Cambodia in 2001 when she shot the cult film "Lara Croft Tomb Raider." She returned there after her appointment as United Nations high commissioner for refugees and peaceful solutions, where she campaigned to raise awareness of the dangers of land mines.

According to Women's News Daily's on-stage interview with Photo: Reuters, Louis Vuitton's CEO for marketing and communications, Jolie—who later for her humanitarian causes—donated a portion of her fees to charity. However, she refused to disclose how much the actress was paid for the campaign.

Such money isn't unusual for Jolie, who, with partner Brad Pitt, is known to donate her fees for such projects in charity. When their three biological children were born in 2006 and 2008, the couple used the resulting proceeds in benefit charities. Jolie and Pitt have six children together, three of whom are adopted.

"We are honored that Angelina Jolie agreed to participate in our 'Core Values' campaign, whose central theme of human unity is a physical and emotional journey is one with which she can personally identify," Reuters said in a statement. "Angelina Jolie is a global star in every sense—across to her career in action, but also her long commitment to humanitarianism and humanitarianism."

The film campaign, which is shown in the campaign, is a tribute that has been discussed, and the "we are contributing to it in a way," Reuters said. Jolie's new bag is a tribute to her six years old, WWII-era.

The popular "Core Values" campaign, which debuted in 2007, has featured Michael Gough, Lily Tom, Ruth Richards, Anne Agapayon and Brad Pitt. Catherine Deneuve, Jean-Claude Van Damme.

How to do denim-on-denim

DESIGN (shorts) $100

THE NEW Gap ads and the runway shows from the likes of brands such as Euphris, Ralph Lauren, Banana Republic, D&G and Chloe coming out this season should indicate that jeans are permitted, and that denim is all-season long.

It's a fashion statement that was made a long time ago and has since been interpreted and played around the edges of your effort less style, denim-on-denim has always been a little tricky.

The key is to mix the fabric weights and the washes. Pair a light wash, lightweight denim bag short with a dark wash denim skirt or a pair of jeans.

The trick is always for us to go for two shades of denim, like maybe a black pair of jeans and a blue denim jacket, which seems a pretty good thought that everyone goes back to.

Maybe it is time to match shades only with a little denim over the top of a different color. It would really break the shades and give the eyes more to look at.

And don't forget to accessorize! The denim-on-denim look can be a little too much, so it might help to spruce up your look with a very interesting pair of eye-catching boots or a statement necklace, or maybe even some piled up bangles on your wrist.

The denim-on-denim routine is a great look for going back to school.

Tip: Keep your eyes in good shape and make them look as clear as crystal.

Longest hair

Using shampoo a few times a week will usually keep our hair's layers. Using it too often may not be advisable, especially when some shampoos have too many chemicals.

When styling, use cold water to close the cuticle, which will make hair softer, smoother and shiny. It is also best to use a warm after bath.

Not only do women keep their hair long, but protect it with oil and the style and protect the hair from styling tools that cause friction, limiting hair damage.

Put a hair with natural texture to redistribute the oils, keeping them in the hair.

There are products that rub hair of oils, such as alcohol or chemical-based products. Pollution and direct sunlight also affect the state of the hair.

Tip: If you take care of your hair, it will have more shine. Hair is a reflection of your health.

Jappy Gonzalez thinks out of the box—again

The man who brought in maverick brands such as Comme des Garçons opens an Ed Calma-designed store that's 'not for everyone' (even if almost everyone is bound to talk about it)

CONCEALED: "Yes, ladies, we're going into the women's—what we say, smell and touch."

By Margie C. Enriquez
Contributor

FASHION RETAILER Mark "Jappy" Gonzalez likes to think out of the box.

After this morning's viewing of their local Group's Inc. two concerning the designer's most famous of brands, the man who brought in maverick brands such as Comme des Garçons, has been seen to bring a new and experience for customers without alienating them from the brand.

The new Group's Inc. (GSI) in One Rockwell or Rockwell, Makati, has an expansive interior architecture that is a blend of modern and traditional.

The brand is also the one of the 20th-century design store at Shangri-La Plaza mall, with seating height of its modern.

The term "Jappy" continues the brand's concept.

"Yes, ladies, we're going into the women's—what we say, smell and touch. I want to make that design. It's a holistic approach to design and how you live," says Gonzalez.

Group's Inc. offers mid-century furniture, pieces and accessories.

It will soon launch its new brand Shangri-La Plaza's collection.

It has an expanded fragrance collection, which includes Group's Inc. and its sister, and other de la Paz perfumes.

There are spaces showing rooms and living areas where customers can sit, drink, and relax. There's a waiting lounge for the brand's guests.

"This is the last design you, and we work on your path or experience," says Gonzalez.

Inspired by vapor

The design was inspired by a logo of a trail of vapor or cigarette which had to be covered. Thus, it has the one color palette that has been the signature of Calma—white, black, beige and a hint of brown or olive green.

The first thing that guests attention are the oversized white beams from the ceiling that flow into headsets and become part of the architecture in the ground.

The architect explains that these were at

It's still so hot

By Raymond Isaac
Contributor

SOME OF us don't know the basics of fragrance. Normally, fragrance is divided into two kinds: oil-based and alcohol-based.

Most fragrances that fall under the oil-based category are usually called perfumes, while the alcohol-based fall under the eau de toilette.

Cologne is a different story. The term is loosely used as a perfume for men, instead of a large oil-based perfume. Cologne contains a mixture of oils, alcohol and water. In the industry, basically "eau de cologne" is lighter than both cologne and perfume.

There are several ways to choose which is good for you. One important aspect is propriety. If you only go out in a tropical country like the Philippines, cologne and eau de toilette are advisable. The heat and humidity affect the scent. Oil-based fragrances are typically stronger, so wearing a strong cologne or perfume in the daytime can irritate the nose. But if you never attend a cold office the whole day, maybe a light perfume would do.

Quality of the skin also affects the scent it gives off. Have you ever wondered why some cologne or perfume smell differently when worn on you? That's the acidity of the skin at work. I, for one, am acidic; therefore, I tend to use alcohol-based cologne. The only time an oil-based fragrance works for me is when I go out at night for parties and events. But even then, I tend to avoid wearing it, if it involves drinking the night away.

Here are some suggestions for fragrance that you can wear during these hot summer days.

Belo brings her brand of beauty to LA

Text and photos by Allen Y. Vergara

LOS ANGELES—It took Dr. Vicki Belo exactly five months to plan her latest baby, but she's been entertaining the idea of taking the plunge for the longest time. In reality doing so, not only did she give up her "preferred" holiday destination, she also had to overcome her love of America as a "bitchin'" mom.

After 21 years in the beauty business, with eight clinics in Manila and one in Cebu tucked under her arm left, the "Doctor in the Mirror" finally spread her feet close to the US. But Anne is, in essence, a second producer. She's not alone in the commercial realm. Martin Soriano, Gary Valenciano and Lou Diamond Phillips were the featured guest performers.

Located at Suite 201, General Barker Square, 3300 Wilshire Center Avenue, Glendale, California 91201 (less than 30 minutes away from Beverly Hills, Los Angeles), Belo Skin Care provides the same services of her sister's education of clients on the Philippines except for invasive procedures such as surgical facelifts, liposuction, nose lift, and hair, chin and breast enhancements.

These non-invasive services include: botox, peels, chemical peels, Botox, fillers, advanced hair removal, microdermabrasion and photo-rejuvenation. For more information, call (818) 244-0811, visit www.belo.com, or e-mail info@beloskin.com.

On top of its spacious and well-lit treatment area, Belo Skin Care has nine treatment rooms. Belo also has a laser facility, medical aesthetician, and a spa. Belo is also expanding from her flagship clinic in Manila. Thus, instead of going off white skin or a tanned skin, Belo does so by using a combination of beauty and a dash of wit in the form of soap, lotion, tongs and hair spray.

"I'd like to believe Belo Skin Care is the LA version, close to a studio city, of my main clinic at the Cambridge Healthcare in Manila," said Belo. "It's probably as big as my clinic in Manila, but it's not as big as I planned down in Boston's Market."

Medical tourism

The development not only signals the arrival of Belo Medical Group (BMG) brand of beauty treatments in the US, it also strengthens Belo's position to market the Philippines as a center for medical tourism. A whopping 40 percent of BMG's market, composed of Filipino, American and other nationalities, comes from the US.

Not only does Belo Skin Care in Glendale expand the Belo brand, said Belo, it also serves, much like her clinic in Paris, as a launching pad to other countries to visit the country to avail themselves of their complicated and invasive procedures.

Glendale and its nearby communities have a big Filipino-American population. The area also has a thriving American medical community. "I used to dream of opening a clinic in Beverly Hills," she said. "But who am I here? Opening a facility in this location is more realistic."

Graduating from her dream of expanding the business, she started 21 years ago was in previous medical tourism in the Philippines. It still holds true, she said, that the Philippines has yet to achieve Thailand's status in being known to experience our business and local services.

After finishing medicine at the University of Santo Tomas, Belo further specialized in dermatology in Thailand. She saw the beginning of that country's new thriving medical surgery industry.

"I saw how it started and asked myself why it couldn't be done in the Philippines," she said. "There is still so much to be gained in medical tourism and we're such a caring society. The quality of service we provide is known all over the world."

Michael Kors reinvents Paris right in his new Paris store

By Rita de Souza

PARIS—IT was the press launch of the Michael Kors boutique on Rue de la Harpe. It was during the recent season's Fashion Week in Paris for the con-

ing. Fall/Winter collection. The Paris store had opened a few days before. The space, now an expansive, modernized boutique, has around the world. As some of the accessories were displayed in glass showcases, others were laid out with bags and shoes. As one walked into the store, one saw a glass staircase leading to the second floor, and toward the back the more casual lines of the brand. Modern chairs lined the way corridor on the second floor, a space that clearly defined the elegance and somewhat sporty nature of the brand. "To us, there is a greater and elegance in Paris and we see it a different way," said Kors.

Sparkly, chunky jewelry pays homage to Liz Taylor

By Amanda S. Tapan

THE CALL is an "old-fashioned" refrain, since she has been mostly involved in the food and beverage business, but Aziza Mondoñedo is mighty proud of her recently released jewelry collection. It's a time she began designing her own pieces.

Using semi-precious stones set in silver, Mondoñedo created 50 pieces for her "Taylor" collection, inspired mostly by the iconic actress. "I'm sure, just like Liz Taylor, she has a lot of earrings and necklaces, all inspired by her own style and elegance in the past."

Her pieces are also quirky—again, just like Mondoñedo herself. Her jewelry—made with her favorite stones—such as natural quartz and agate, which "captures the light really well." She uses a lot of stones like turquoise, coral, jade, opal, again, among others. "I call it a 'Liz Taylor homage,'" she says.

Mondoñedo finds rings the easiest to make. "I really like big, chunky things, which are difficult to be cut because of the size of the stones."

The young entrepreneur, who runs her family's Tinian Bar restaurant in Cebu, and Mondoñedo's own, located in Manila, began her collection in 2009. "I was inspired by the stones and the colors of the stones," she says.

just made her own, since she loved buying things. Mondoñedo has had no training on the technical side of jewelry making. "I went to jewelry school, but my background is really culinary and restaurant management," she says. She does all of the designing, and then works the technical side, or assembly.

"Finding a place was a challenge. With the first one, the settings weren't as fine, so I looked for the silver was overpowering the stones," says Mondoñedo.

"It took a while to get the settings right. With another one, in Cebu, it was hard because I couldn't really source [jewelry] all the time." The new pieces are all of her jewelry from Manila.

Because the business is still in its infancy, Mondoñedo hopes to use it to support Mondoñedo personally (average price is about P20,000). More than anything, however, the designer wants to use the collection to make a statement. "It's really a creative outlet," Mondoñedo says. "Some people are into photography or painting, this is mine."

"Liberals in private life are not as liberal as they are in public," Moore began candidly, noting that despite his father's popularity in the young, more and more men, like her, conclude that the country of yesterday is gone and that the country of the future is not yet born. "There are people here who have not yet begun to understand the meaning of a common manhood," he pointed out. "The nation is not a government, it is a people. The nation is not a religion, it is a common experience and a common brotherhood," said Moore. He said that the nation is the principle of the equality and justice of all men and the right of every man to be heard and to be heard on his own terms.

For Sam, KC love was not on to-do list

By Harold R. Cruz

TELEVISION played actors KC Concepcion and Sam Milby in a Gladrags when they first began filming Forever and a Day, according to director Carly Garcia-Molina.

"They're such good friends that they can't even look at each other as lovers," Molina told entertainment when recently. "The first shooting days were tough—punching, hitting, it became a discipline. I asked KC and Sam not to talk to each other on the set."

"I was supposed to be a mentor for with a different leading lady" and Molina, who made the love affair for Forever and a Day (2007), A Very Special Love (2008) and One Charming Life (2009). "When I saw them together, I was surprised that this was double."

Molina, who has worked with Sam in her movies since 2006, said the 27-year-old actor is "a real one" in his new film. He said he has become one of her favorite actors.

Sam explained, "Every actor has different roles. I just feel the director." Forever and a Day, which also features Maricel Soriano, River Cruz, Robin De Rosa, Iga Maramba, Rocco Nino and Irene Reyes, opened to over 100 theaters nationwide on Wednesday.

Hollywood veteran bids fond farewell... by Anne Thompson

Century Fox and asked if she could buy them before a scheduled public auction. She was "shocked" when Fox told yes. T picked myself up on the floor," she said, adding that she had been there in the studio lot, excited to be the first to go over the remaining gold.

Some of the items that will go on the auction block, like Julie Andrews' guitar in "The Sound..." have extra value because Julie said she wore it when she was in the studio lot, excited to be the first to go over the remaining gold.

jeweled gold gown she wore in "Hello, Dolly!" that is reported. It was one of the most expensive dresses made for a movie.

One bought back
It took like a quick guide through cinema history as Dolly's shared some personal observations about the staggering items on display (her memory is now sharp). From Reginald Bergman's armor suit in "Man of War" (some critics from her collection she had to buy it back to an auction), Marlon Brando's costume costume costume in "Napoleon Bonaparte," Charlie Chaplin's vulgar, sex bowler hat... to the 1915 first Model T used in Laurel and Hardy films.

Little-matched British Roadshow's campy voice as the road by the latter's copious in "Catherine the Great." The actress said she was one of a pair of golden stars in "Hello, Dolly!" as she shared some anecdotes, including how she passed out several times during the filming of "The Unsinkable..." (she worried so Oscar nomination for this film) because of fatigue from standing for long periods of time.

With costumes of the most memorable leading stars during the golden age of cinema in the background, she will add which actors were in the background and insights to their earlier careers. The event, Road Pitt and Johnny Depp.

ALICIA Keys' Best Years dress in "My Fair Lady"

As the event ended, we shared Dolly's latest that her dress for many years to display all these memorable costumes and props in a single museum is not going to occur now. But, even the time movie stars Dolly shared last evening could be added here to say "goodbye" to our language. "Dolly" she exclaimed. "That's my!"

Thanks, if you have a few thousand dollars or more to spare, go to the pre-auction. It's a lot of fun. emilys@emilys.com

Hollywood veteran bids fond farewell to her 'babies'

LOS ANGELES—It was a little lower-down afternoon. Imagine seeing up close the Beyoncé impersonator in "The King and I," Julie Andrews' dress and guitar in "The Sound of Music" and hundreds of other Hollywood memorabilia, most of them looking back on our movie-going childhood.

Her life's work was having no less than 100,000 items. Debbie Reynolds' rocking, playing, sometimes even singing and acting in a few lines in the game on a personal case of her "babies," a dazzling collection of memorabilia and props she has amassed for over four decades. She even (acted as a singing angel) or two from her own life that were made a part of Hollywood lore.

Tomorrow, Debbie's Hollywood treasures—mostly Moore's famous pinched dress in "The Green Years," Judy Garland's blue-velvet dress in "The Wizard of Oz" and Audrey Hepburn's iconic dress in "My Fair Lady"—will be auctioned off.

'Kodak' moments

Acting as the host of the day at the lobby of the Hollywood Center for Media in Beverly Hills, the star of such classic as "Beverly Hills Cop" and "The Untouchables" (Debbie) was the epitome of old school Hollywood: outfit, makeup, dressed in lavender from head to toe. Her of all, Debbie was gracious and respectful of the "Kodak" moments, holding a pose here and there and flashing a radiant smile.

Debbie took her vintage hands and made small talk. The actress told us the memories going to the Philippines during the Korean War in the 1950s when the contractor 150 troops in his.

The star of 1950s movies had hoped to build a museum to honor his collection but development deals over the years kept falling through. Now, at 79, Debbie, faced with the financial challenges of the maintenance and the insurance costs of housing about 1,000 large pieces, she having to have to pay goodie to her "babies" tonight this weekend, a second auction for the collection on Dec. 2.

"It will be a real day," Debbie said of the auction. But this afternoon, she was her usual perky self as she walked as though the collection displayed across from.

With clips of actors being shown on monitors that highlight some of the costumes and props on display were edited by her son, Todd Fisher, Debbie proudly pointed out, "I just don't like that her name," she quipped to a group of photographers. It was Debbie's wedding anniversary to Todd's father, stage actor Fisher and a well-known chapter in her life. In the '70s, Debbie was married to Fisher (the actor produced an other offspring, writer and actor Curtis Fisher).

Debbie had an affair with Michael Taylor, who was then married, but the death of Michael Todd, her husband and Fisher's best friend, Debbie divorced Debbie and married Fisher. It was one of the biggest scandals and controversies in that era.

"When I'm gone..."

When we asked Debbie if she is keeping on her toes, her collection, she said Debbie convinced her to stay a dress or two. "The main thing is to look at and remember me by when I'm gone," said the actress, who was dressed in "Slipping in the Bath" will also go under the hammer. During the tour, she often said "When I'm gone..." that her picture (which she told her to say) saying it, Debbie is still sharp and sprightly, not mentioning how she still commands attention in any room.

Debbie indicated that, in addition to financial reasons, she was of the opinion to be sold "now, while she is still alive. Everything should be done now."

Like most Hollywood stars, she's had her share of ups and downs. After divorcing Henry Kauf, Debbie reportedly lived for a while in her son, a Cadillac. She was known as a socialite, especially during the peak of the so-called "New Wave" movies, as the mom of Carrie who played Princess Leia.

She finished her career in 1970 and holding her right hand, demonstrating how she moved her hand in a unique and taught many of the items on sale. "This is the story," she joked, looking at her hand held.

Because of her long history of her life she amassed her collection. Debbie died her the night 2008.

Ford extends new service promotion Company explains why use of genuine parts ensures quality

Ford Group Philippines (FGP) announced that its new customer service promotion is extended until June to further strengthen its offering of genuine parts and service to owners with Ford vehicles with expired warranties. The promotion is part of Ford's ongoing commitment to ensure highest performance of Ford vehicles and leading customer service experience.

In addition to providing world-class Ford vehicles, we continuously aim to further enhance and improve our already best-in-class customer service experience. This new campaign will help further strengthen our leading cost-of-ownership equation, and help our customers continue to feel the difference of today's Ford," said David Macasadia, vice president, Ford Customer Service Division.

The Ford Service promotion includes a free oil filter to out-of-warranty Ford owners who will avail of the Periodic Maintenance Service until the month of June as well as a 15 percent discount on parts and labor. The offering is valid for Ford Focus, Ford Escape, Ford Everest and Ford Ranger units sold from 2004 to 2007.

Dependable Parts and Service

Macasadia also highlighted that the use of non-Ford original parts can reduce the safety of a vehicle for the driver and other road users, including pedestrians. Ford Motor Company insists significantly to make sure it can meet very stringent safety requirements and for good reasons.

Using genuine Ford replacement parts helps ensure the vehicle will be restored to its original condition, protects the vehicle's residual values and has safety benefits too, according to Macasadia.

"We place highly visible branding on our parts, so people can make sure their vehicles have been repaired to the highest possible standard," said Macasadia.

Five reasons for choosing Ford original parts:

- 1. SAFETY - Tests carried out by the independent and respected UK-based organization, Motor Industry Round Association (MIRA), confirm that using non-Ford parts can significantly increase injury risk in an accident situation.
- 2. WARRANTY - Core parts are not covered by the Ford Parts Warranty.
- 3. AVAILABILITY - Authorized Ford Parts Dealers keep a large selection of collision and mechanical parts in stock. If it's not in stock, Ford can deliver the part within 24 hours, so the wait will not be long.
- 4. FIT AND FINISH - It takes less time to fit Ford original parts because they do fit. All Ford original parts are designed from the original blueprint and CAD (Computer-Aided Design) data. Because there are no unslightly gaps from poorly fitting parts, residue buildup is also prevented.
- 5. CORROSION - non-original parts are not covered by the Ford Corrosion Warranty and can have reduced stone chip resistance.

Ford Philippines May sales climb 85 percent

Popular all-new Ford Fiesta and sporty Ford Focus record best month of the year

Ford Group Philippines (FGP) today reported overall May sales for Ford brand vehicles (excluding SUVs) rose 85 percent from the same month last year to 1,117 units. Ford's impressive May performance was driven by the continued demand for Ford's fuel-efficient cars and tough trucks and SUVs.

The 10 most popular Fiesta recorded its best performance of the year with May sales of 324 units, helping to further establish its position as one of the most leaders of the B-segment. Year-to-date sales of the Ford Fiesta total to 1,498 units.

"The all-new Fiesta continues to drive our brand's run of monthly sales performance this year, underpinning its strategic role in not only transforming our business, but also the competitive landscape as one of the most leaders of its segment," said Randy Kluger, president of Ford Group Philippines. "The low-volume car is attracting a wide range of Filipino customers who appreciate its sleek-looking style, smart technology, superior fuel efficiency, and unmatched safety in a small car."

Ford's strong May performance was also supported by continued strong sales this year of the Ford Everest and Ford Ranger. Sales of Everest rose 47 percent from the same month a year ago to 236 units, while Ranger sales increased 34 percent to 132 units. The Ford Focus also turned in its best monthly performance of the year with sales of 152 units.

"We're continuing to experience strong demand across our full product lineup that is contributing to our very positive performance. It's a strong indication that our Ford strategy is working, and we're offering the right line of Ford vehicles in this market that suit a diverse range of Filipino lifestyles and requirements," added Kluger.

Overall sales of Ford-brand vehicles in the Philippines through the first five months of the year continue to support the overall outlook, having risen 40 percent from the same period a year ago to 3,568 vehicles.
